

Pseudoexfoliative glaucoma

Contributed by Administrator
Thursday, 08 November 2007

This condition is characterised by tiny white flaky deposits on the lens surface - and elsewhere in the eye - also in other parts of the body infact. Treatment is the same as for primary open angle glaucoma. Patients may respond well to laser treatment (laser trabeculoplasty).